MIRATECH

SERVICE CONTRACTS

AT YOUR SERVICE: MIRATECH SERVICE CONTRACTS.

No question: your investment in emissions control equipment is a business necessity. Regulations are tightening, and non-compliance means stiff fines, the risk of operational shutdowns, and more.

Of course, the investment doesn't end when your emissions control system is installed. Like any equipment, emission control gear needs regular, proper maintenance to do the job you've bought it to do. In fact, compliance depends on it.

But these systems – and the regulations that make them necessary – are complex and involve issues and technologies that may be unfamiliar to your personnel. After all, your organization isn't in the business of emission control, whatever your business may be. And every minute you spend on emissions control is time and attention taken away from Job One – running your operation.

The good news: You don't have to hire new people with specialist knowledge, skills and experience for a job that doesn't require full-time work. You don't have to retrain and add to the workload of people already on board. MIRATECH Service Contracts offer a more cost-effective solution.

Your MIRATECH Service Contract, tailored to your needs and budget, let you keep your system running at peak performance – and your operation in compliance – with predictable, manageable, controlled expense and minimal distraction from running your operation. While you and your people concentrate on your core business, we'll take care of emissions control system maintenance – delivering a wide range of fixed-interval inspection and maintenance services on-site.

WHY MIRATECH?

Since 1992, MIRATECH has earned its standing at the forefront of industrial engine emissions control. We know the regulations – federal, state and local – chapter and verse. We know stationary reciprocating internal combustion engines inside out – and we've had vast experience with the do's and don'ts of bringing RICE emissions into compliance, working with engines of all shapes and sizes, in applications ranging from power generation to gas compression to water, petroleum and liquids pumping, and more. If there's a problem – or a potential problem – we've probably already solved it. If a new one arises, no one will get to the bottom of it faster.

Needless to say, No one knows MIRATECH products better. No one is better equipped to get maximum performance and value out of our emissions control system at minimum cost.

WORLD-CLASS SOLUTIONS.

Headquarters: USA

Key components of MIRATECH solutions were developed in-house at MIRATECH's United States Headquarters or by HUG Engineering, our Swiss-Based partner. As HUG's, only North American partner, we put the world's most advanced solutions to work for our customers, backed by expert MIRATECH engineering and technical support close to home. And we stand behind every product we ship, delivering responsive, customer-focused service and support that set standards for the industry.
